Theoretical Foundations in Geriatric Nursing

A solid understanding of relevant theories informs effective practice. Several models and theories underpin nursing care for older adults, providing frameworks to guide assessment, planning, and intervention.

Core principles include:

- Respect for individual differences and life experiences.
- Promotion of autonomy and self-care.
- Recognition of the aging process as a normal life stage.

Proposed by Lawton and Nahemow, this theory suggests that an individual's functioning is optimal when there is a good fit between their abilities and environmental demands. In practice, this underscores the importance of modifying living environments to match the capabilities of older adults, thereby reducing risks such as falls or social isolation.

3. The Activity Theory of Aging

This theory posits that maintaining social and physical activity levels correlates with improved life satisfaction in older adults. Nursing interventions often encourage engagement in meaningful activities to promote mental and physical health.

4. Theories of Self-Care and Self-Care Deficit

Based on Orem's Self-Care Deficit Nursing Theory, this approach emphasizes empowering older adults to meet their own self-care needs, with nurses providing assistance when deficits are identified.

Application in Practice:

- Assessment of self-care capabilities.
- Developing personalized care plans promoting independence.
- Education and support to foster self-management.
